How Tipping Policies At Uber Eats, Prime Now And More Compare To DoorDash

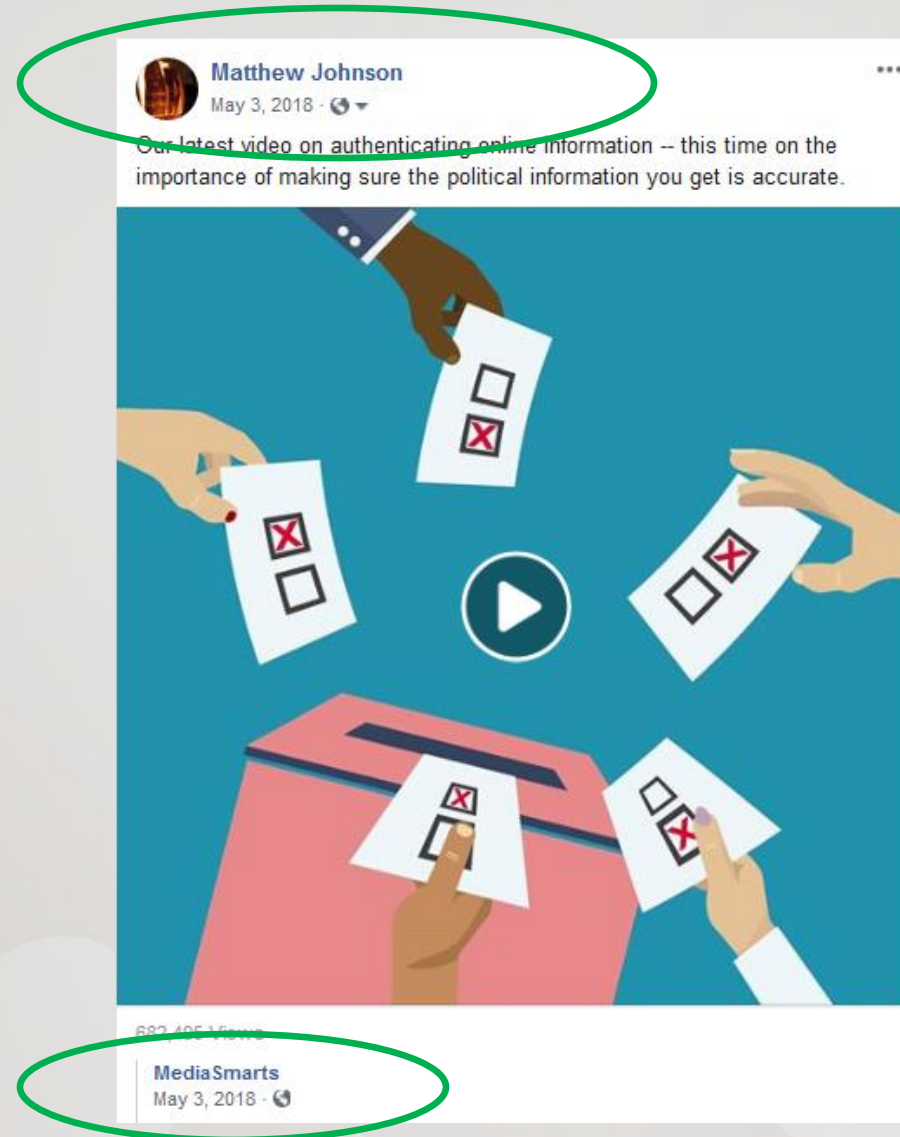

The year 2019 is a magical time for homebodies, introverts and couch potatoes alike. Technology has all but eliminated the need to leave your house or speak to actual humans for just about any reason – including eating. Thanks to on-demand food delivery apps, such as DoorDash, Uber Eats and Grubhub, you can have anything from breakfast burritos to Thai food delivered to your door in a matter of minutes.

But the last time you downed pad thai in the blissful quiet of your home, did you stop to consider the true cost of that convenience? Maybe not.

A recent New York Times article exposed what it's really like to be a delivery person for these types of services, including the unfair tipping policy of one in particular: DoorDash. You might assume that when you tip your Dasher $3 for a speedy delivery, he pockets the full $3 in addition to whatever DoorDash promised to pay. However, it turned out that DoorDash was using tips to subsidize workers' base pay. In other words, if the service promised to pay your delivery person $10 for the order and you tipped $3, he'd still get only $10 – and DoorDash would only have to shell out $7.

The backlash following this discovery has been so great that DoorDash decided to change its policy. Chief Executive Tony Xu took to Twitter on July 23 to explain how the company will allocate tips in the future.

Venezuelan aid fire caused by protester, not government forces — World News with Matt Bevan

The New York Times has reported

Venezuelan Government forces were not responsible for setting fire to an aid truck as it tried to cross from Columbia to Venezuela a couple of weeks ago.

The paper said they obtained unpublished footage, as well as previously released footage from the Colombian Government, which allowed for a reconstruction of the incident.

Breakdancing could be coming to the Olympics.

According to the Associated Press, The International Olympic Committee's executive board ~~has recommended~~ breakdancing, skateboarding, sports climbing and surfing be added to the 2024 Summer Games in Paris.

According to IOC president Thomas Bach, these "more youthful and urban" additions would present new opportunities to "connect with the young generation."

"We decided to recommend the four sports [for ratification] to the IOC session in June in Lausanne," Bach added, per Reuters. "It is a provisional inclusion because the final decision should only be taken at the end of 2020."

Breakdancing is the only sport that would be entirely new to the Olympics, with skateboarding, sports climbing and surfing already added to the 2020 Tokyo Games.

The Record (Sherbrooke)

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

The Record is the only daily (Monday–Friday) English language newspaper based in Sherbrooke, Quebec, Canada. It serves the Eastern Townships region of that province.

Launched on February 9, 1897, by businessman Leonard Channell and originally known as the Sherbrooke Daily Record, it is one of the two last surviving English-language daily newspapers in the French-speaking province, the other being the much larger Montreal Gazette.

For the past several years, The Record has been a daily community newspaper for the anglophone minority in the Eastern Townships, without comprehensive coverage of national and world news.

"Talk", or "Talk of the Townships", a weekly television, arts and cultural insert, appears every Friday. Periodic sections focus on individual communities and events within the Record's service area.

Future Canadian media barons John Bassett and Conrad Black both got their starts in newspaper ownership as owner and co-owner, respectively, of the Sherbrooke Daily Record.

For years The Record was owned by Black's Hollinger International. In January 2006 it was purchased by Alta Newspaper Group, a partnership of Glacier Ventures International and former Hollinger executive David Radler.

Officials have unveiled a new proposal that will help fund plans to implement universal basic income across the country.

As more and more jobs are threatened by robots, officials have come up with a plan to eventually introduce universal basic income - which is basically a minimum salary that will be paid to all it's citizens. Though it seems like a great idea, it will be expensive. How expensive? At least $43 billion.

To pay for it, early this week it was announced that online casinos would be permitted to operate. It's expected that tax revenues collected from these online casinos and

'Not familiar' firm helped Clinton team collude in four ways

By Rowan Scarborough
THE WASHINGTON TIMES

Former special counsel Robert Mueller drew a blank on the Democrats' opposition research firm Fusion GPS, which penetrated the upper reaches of the FBI to feed the Trump-Russia conspiracy theory.

Fusion GPS, with money from the Hillary Clinton campaign and the Democratic National Committee, hired Christopher Steele, a former British spy who tapped Kremlin intelligence officials to weave a dossier filled with allegations against Donald Trump, including that he led an "extensive conspiracy" to have Russia intervene in the election.

Republicans said the 74-year-old prosecutor's health was a hot topic in prep sessions.

He said he didn't believe those colleagues and warned them to expect a razor-sharp witness, but "it turned out the rumors we've been hearing about his condition seemed accurate."

The deal includes increases for both defense and domestic spending, though the domestic side grows slightly faster, Democrats crowed. And having the debt deal in place should lower the risk of another government shutdown over the next 24 months.

The final vote tally was 284-149, with more than 90% of Democrats backing it. More than two-thirds of Republicans defied Mr. Trump and opposed the bill.

Federal executions to return in December

Barr's order comes after 16-year hiatus, includes new injection protocol

By Devlin Barrett and Mark Berman

The Trump administration announced plans Thursday to resume executing federal prisoners awaiting the death penalty — ending a 16-year moratorium on the practice and setting the stage for fresh legal challenges.

Attorney General William B. Barr ordered the Bureau of Prisons to schedule executions for five inmates on death row. Each was convicted of murdering children, among others.

"The Justice Department upholds the rule of law — and we owe it to the victims and their families to carry forward the sentence imposed by our justice system," Barr said in a statement.

By diving into the death penalty debate, the Trump administration is pushing back against the country's recent trend of declining executions and putting the federal government squarely on the side of states trying to carry out death sentences.

A host of Democratic presidential candidates denounced the Justice Department decision and affirmed their opposition to the death penalty. In recent weeks, the Democratic field has sparred internally over criminal justice issues, but the death penalty is a topic on which many of them are in sync.

California auto deal sidesteps Trump

FOUR COMPANIES JOIN EMISSIONS PLAN

White House wants to relax mileage standards

By Juliet Eilperin and Brady Dennis

Four automakers from three continents have struck a deal with California to produce fleets that are more fuel-efficient in coming years, undercutting one of the Trump administration's most aggressive climate policy rollbacks.

The compromise between the California Air Resources Board and Ford, Honda, Volkswagen and BMW of North America came after weeks of secret negotiations and could shape future U.S. vehicle production, even as White House officials aim to relax gas-mileage standards for the nation's cars, pickups and SUVs.

Mary D. Nichols, California's top air pollution regulator, said in an interview that she sees the agreement as a potential "olive branch" to the Trump administration and hopes it joins the deal, which she said gives automakers flexibility in meeting emissions goals without the "massive backsliding" contained in the White House proposal.

'Not familiar' firm helped Clinton team collude in four ways

By Rowan Scarborough
THE WASHINGTON TIMES

Former special counsel Robert Mueller drew a blank on the Democrats' opposition research firm Fusion GPS, which penetrated the upper reaches of the FBI to feed the Trump-Russia conspiracy theory.

Fusion GPS, with money from the Hillary Clinton campaign and the Democratic National Committee, hired Christopher Steele, a former British spy who tapped Kremlin intelligence officials to weave a dossier filled with allegations against Donald Trump, including that he led an "extensive conspiracy" to have Russia intervene in the election.

Graham regrets Democrats' pressure to testify

By Jerry Musson
THE WASHINGTON TIMES

Republicans said the 74-year-old prosecutor's health was a hot topic in prep sessions.

"There were some House Republicans in our prep sessions putting themselves on the back about that and feeling optimistic about assertions he might not be all there," Mr. Gutz told The Washington Times.

He said he didn't believe those colleagues and warned them to expect a razor-sharp witness, but "it turned out the rumors we've been hearing about his condition seemed accurate."

"I told my colleagues to expect him to be like a wolverine and they'd better know every chapter and verse and citation for every question," he said.

Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Lindsey Graham, a South Carolina Republican who wasn't part of the questioning of Mr. Mueller, said he was aware of

Conservatives defy Trump's pleas for increased spending

By Stephen Dunn

The deal includes increases for both defense and domestic spending, though the domestic side grows slightly faster, Democrats crowd. And having the debt deal in place should lower the risk of another government shutdown over the next 24 months.

"This is about paying for what we have invested in already," said Mrs. Pelosi, who led her troops to an overwhelming show of support.

The final vote tally was 284-149, with more than 90% of Democrats backing it. More than two-thirds of Republicans defied Mr. Trump and opposed the bill.

Federal executions to return in December

Barr's order comes after 16-year hiatus, includes new injection protocol

By Devlin Barrett and Mark Berman

The Trump administration announced plans Thursday to resume executing federal prisoners awaiting the death penalty — ending a 16-year moratorium on the practice and setting the stage for fresh legal challenges.

Attorney General William B. Barr ordered the Bureau of Prisons to schedule executions for five inmates on death row. Each was convicted of murdering children, among others.

"The Justice Department upholds the rule of law — and we owe it to the victims and their families to carry forward the sentence imposed by our justice system," Barr said in a statement.

By diving into the death penalty debate, the Trump administration is pushing back against the country's recent trend of declining executions and putting the federal government squarely on the side of states trying to carry out death sentences.

A host of Democratic presidential candidates denounced the Justice Department decision and affirmed their opposition to the death penalty. In recent weeks, the Democratic field has sparred internally over criminal justice issues, but the death penalty is a topic on which many of them are in sync.

California auto deal sidesteps Trump

FOUR COMPANIES JOIN EMISSIONS PLAN

White House wants to relax mileage standards

By Juliet Eilperin and Brady Dennis

Four automakers from three continents have struck a deal with California to produce fleets that are more fuel-efficient in coming years, undercutting one of the Trump administration's most aggressive climate policy rollbacks.

The compromise between the California Air Resources Board and Ford, Honda, Volkswagen and BMW of North America came after weeks of secret negotiations and could shape future U.S. vehicle production, even as White House officials aim to relax gas-mileage standards for the nation's cars, pickups and SUVs.

Mary D. Nichols, California's top air pollution regulator, said in an interview that she sees the agreement as a potential "olive branch" to the Trump administration and hopes it joins the deal, which she said gives automakers flexibility in meeting emissions goals without the "massive backsliding" contained in the White House proposal.

"What we have here is a statement of principles intended to reach out to the federal government to move them off the track

Heat wave smashes records across Europe

BY JAMES MCAULEY AND ANDREW FREEDMAN

PARIS — A historic heat wave inflicted life-threatening temperatures on Europe and shattered all-time highs in multiple countries Thursday.

Paris registered a jaw-dropping 108.7 degrees, according to Météo-France, the national weather service, breaking the record of 104.7 degrees set in 1947.

Belgium, Germany and the Netherlands all saw new national records Thursday, beating highs set just the day before — with the Netherlands exceeding 104 degrees for the first time on record.

Britain came just shy of its record. The Met Office in Cambridge, England, measured 100.6 degrees Thursday. And London experienced its hottest July day on record, with a temperature of 100.2.

Those temperatures may not seem shocking by the standards of many regions in the United States, but in Europe, where air conditioning is relatively uncommon, they can be deadly.

5 expert tricks to get a better deal on your next flight

LISA FELEPCHUK Updated: July 8, 2019

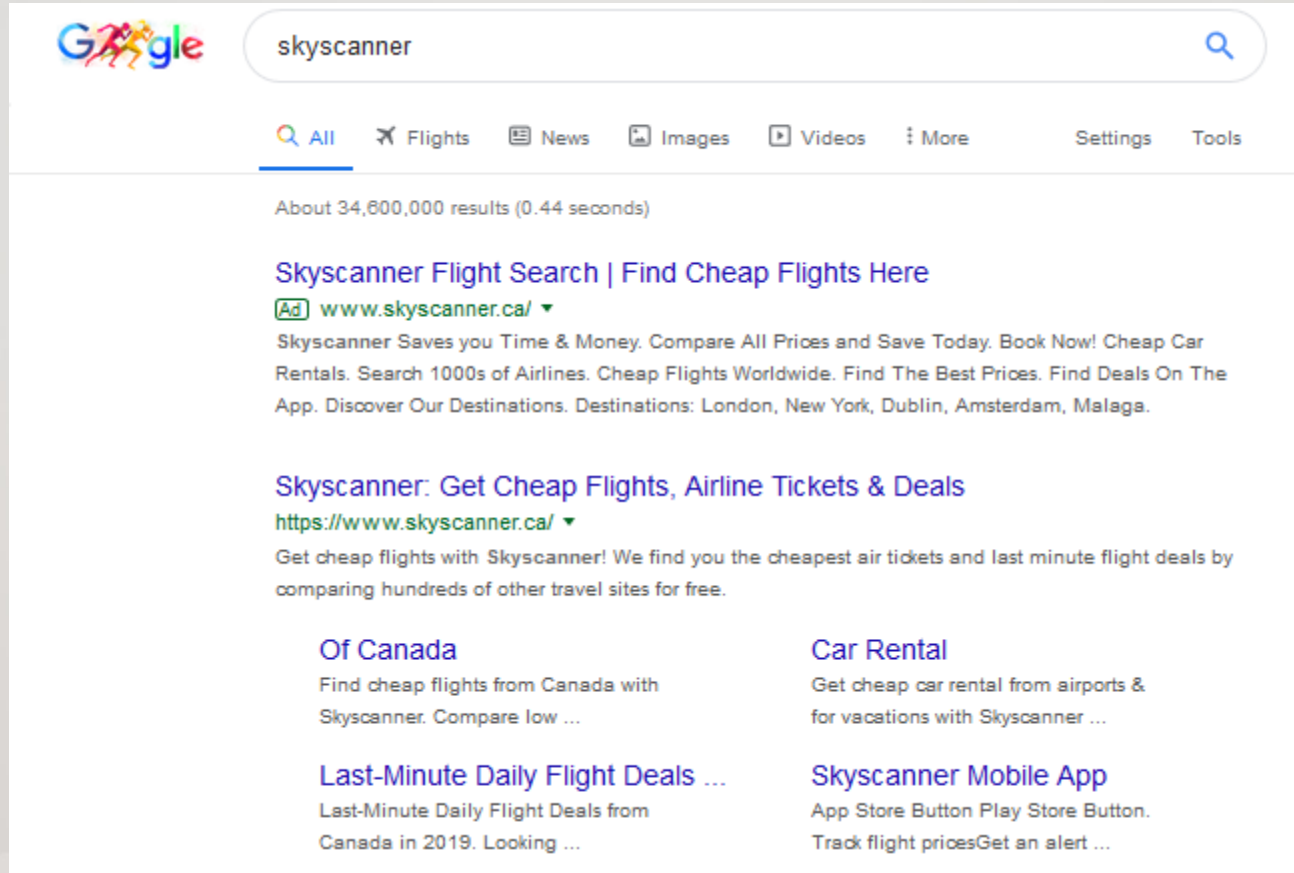

The truth is, most folks aren't confident that the flight they finally end up booking is in fact the cheapest option. According to a recent Skyscanner survey, 41 per cent of people polled admitted that they didn't think they'd gotten the best deal possible.

Still, only 34 per cent of Canadians said they consider themselves as bargain-hunters. So while we love to hunt for the lowest price on flights, we're not so sure about our ability to do so.

We asked Alex Astafiev, a travel industry expert at Skyscanner, to share some of his best advice when it comes to understanding and scoring the very best rate for a seat on a plane.

Main article: Solar cycle

Solar minimum is the period of least solar activity in the 11 year solar cycle of the Sun. During this time, sunspot and solar flare activity diminishes, and often does not occur for days at a time. The date of the minimum is described by a smoothed average over 12 months of sunspot activity, so identifying the date of the solar minimum usually can only happen 6 months after the minimum takes place. Solar minima are not generally correlated with changes in climate but recent studies have shown a correlation with regional weather patterns.<sup>[citation needed]</sup>

Solar minimum is contrasted with the solar maximum, where there may be hundreds of sunspots.

Solar minimum and solar maximum

[ edit ]

Solar minima and maxima are the two extremes of the Sun's 11-year activity cycle.<sup>[1]</sup> At a maximum, the Sun is peppered with sunspots, solar flares erupt, and the Sun hurls billion-ton clouds of electrified gas into space. Sky watchers may see more auroras, and space agencies must monitor radiation storms for astronaut protection. Power outages, satellite malfunctions, communication disruptions, and GPS receiver malfunctions are just a few of the things that can happen during a solar maximum.<sup>[2]</sup>

At a solar minimum, there are fewer sunspots and solar flares subside. Sometimes, days or weeks go by without a spot.

Predicting solar minimum cycles

[ edit ]

Their non-linear character makes predictions of solar activity very difficult.<sup>[3]</sup> The solar minimum is characterized by a period of decreased solar activity with few, if any, sunspots. Scientists from the National Center for Atmospheric Research (NCAR) also developed a computer model of solar dynamics (Solar dynamo) for more accurate predictions and have confidence in the forecast based upon a series of test runs with the newly developed model simulating the strength of the past eight solar cycles with more than 98% accuracy.<sup>[4]</sup> In hindsight the prediction proved to be wildly

Thanks to those who posted fake rice on Facebook. 2 weeks ago I bought a sack of sticky rice 2016 from Vien Dong at 54th street in San Diego and this what I got. It smells like rice, looks like rice, and tastes like rice, but the bag is filled with these pieces of plastic. I think this is fake rice.

Reports hold that plastic rice made in China has flooded Western markets, but you'd probably notice if your dinner tasted like the bag in which you carried it home.
