

DIGESTIVE DISEASES PATHFINDER

Biology 12

When searching online you can use these District databases via the WGSS Library website www.wgsslibrary.ca

Science in Context (Gale) – Remember to use the built-in search feature once you have accessed the resources on your topic.

Consumer Health Complete (EBSCO). – Try the Fact sheets and pamphlets first for easily accessed information; often arranged in point form.

(From home you will need the school's user name and password to connect to the database resources. Contact the Library staff or ask your teacher or this access information.)

National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Diseases \(NIH\)

This US Government sponsored site lists particulars about a number of digestive-related diseases.

Canadian Digestive Health

Open the menu tab for Digestive Conditions to explore a number of listed disorders in the drop-down menu. Once you are investigating a topic be sure to explore the list of additional resources available. Many of the digestive diseases have separate websites listed.

Medline Plus: Stomach/Gastric Disorders

Another US Government sponsored medical information site with information on some common stomach-related disorders. The various disorders are identified through the blue links.
